افغان ها و انگلیس ها

(مقدمه)

جای بیشتر خالی تصویر در پرداخته های تاریخی افغانستان در تمام انواع باستانی، وسطایی و معاصر، به نوعی درک دقیق را مشکل ساخته است؛ هرچند با افزایش و کاهش باور ها، ماهیت پدیده ها متغیر شده اند، اما حقیقت این که ابزار فرهنگی نگارش، هرگز نتوانسته اند جای نگرش را پُر کنند، فرهنگ «نقش» را ارجح می سازد.

بی نیاز بسیار به توجیه «شنیدن کی بود مانند دیدن»، می خواهم تصریح کنم که در تعمیم مقوله ی تاریخ در کشور ما، نگرش - بسیار متمم نگارش نبوده است. در سالیان اخیر نیز که انکشافات تخنیکی و رسانه یی، به تسلیح جمعی رسیده اند، مستندسازی تاریخی با عینیات دیداری بسیار توأم نمی شود.

جای خالی تصویر در تالیف های تاریخی ما به قدری ست که در جمود آن، حتی در کتاب هایی که به تازه گی تحویل می دهند، جای نگرش تاریخی را اگر نیاز به تصویر باشد، با معدود تصاویری پُر می کنند که بر اساس کاپی - پیست با چند بار اخذ از کتبی ست که بیش از نیم قرن قبل منتشر شده اند. بنا بر این، کمتر به خود زحمت می دهند با استفاده از وسایل متنوع پخش و نشر کنونی، سراغ گذشته ای بروند که تصویر یک بت بودایی، کُل تاریخ آن را خلاصه می سازد.

در مجموعه ای که در برابر خواننده و بیننده ی افغان، قرار می دهم، با توجیه نگرش، سعی کرده ام برای نخستین بار، تاریخی را در برابر هموطنان، قرار دهم که افزون بر اهمیت دو تقابل گذشته گان ما با امپراتوری بریتانیای کبیر، تسجیل تصویری آن بی شک در حکم ذهنیت های آگاهی تاریخی، بسیار ممد واقع می شود.

قرن نوزده ی افغانستان، یک سده ی ناگواری هاست. نوع تجاوز با متجاوززی که قبلاً هرگز دیده و شنیده نشده بود، سرزمین تاریخی ما را

به صوبی رهنمون می سازد که اگر در پایمردی گذشته گان افغان ها، شهرت افغانستان را جهانی ساخت، در استراتژی استعمار، شاید هنوز هم از اثرات و تبعات آن رهایی نیافته ایم. تحقیر امپراتوری بریتانیای کبیر در اوج قدرت، از شگفتی های تاریخ ماست. در واقع مواجه با نوع جدید تجاوز و متجاوز، افزون بر تشهیر کشوری، منطقه یی و جهانی، افغانستان را در محدوده ی جیوپولیتیک، به بسا از مفاهیم تحکیم دولت - حکومت کشاند؛ هرچند بازی های زشت سیاسی، فشار های محسوس دو قطب روسیه ی تزاری و هند بریتانوی، خاک های جبراً جدا شده از کشور را استحاله کردند، اما روح افغانی در آن ها زنده مانده است.

در قرن بیست و یک، «بیداری»، خواب نوکرسفت هایی را نیز خراب می سازد که با سال ها دانش کمپانی هند شرقی، سعی می کنند جلو خرد جمعی را بگیرند.

در باب تقابل افغان ها و انگلیس ها، هنوز ناگفته های زیادی وجود دارند. همچنان تبیین ارزش ها و پدیده هایی که جغرافیای کنونی افغانستان را به اعتلای دولت - حکومت رسانده اند، تاریخ معاصر را با ویژه گی هایی که هرگز در گذشته در منطقه ی ما اتفاق نیافته بود، در اولویت، قرار می دهد.

در حالی که خیانت تاریخ نویسی های هرزه (عتیقه) به نوع سردرگمی در تفکر جامعه ی ما به نفع بیگانه، منجر شده اند، عمد بی طرفی در تصریح تاریخ معاصر و ارزش های آن که ریشه ی تمام دست آورد های عمرانی، انکشافی، فرهنگی، رسانه یی، اقتصادی و سیاسی کنونی ست نیز باعث شده، مقوله ی منافع ملی و جیوپولیتیک افغانستان، قربانی برداشت هایی شود که وقتی از واحد سیاسی بیرون می رویم، انحصار داشته های گذشته برای هیچ کشور منطقه، آسان نیست. شاید مفهوم «سرزمین» بتواند گذشته هایی را برای ما مختص

بسازد، اما تعیین عمق تاریخی جعلیات و خزعبلات آریایی، خراسانی و فارسی به جای افغانستان و افغان ها، راه را باز گذشته تا در هرج و مرج ادعا، کشور ستیزی به نام مفاهیم ایرانی، حداقل بخشی از اقلیت های قومی را در خانه ی ما به ستون پنجم، مبدل کند.

در کتابی که در برابر شما قرار دارد، با ابتکار زحمت یک اثر وقت گیر، دردرساز و جنجالی، اما گذشته ای را مستند ساخته ام که ارزش «نگرش» را تسجیل می کند.

متاسفانه ناآگاهی یا بی توجهی به قدری به خلای فرهنگی ما انجامیده که حتی در سهولت های دنیای مجازی نیز یک بخش قابل ملاحظه ی معلومات مهم پیرامون ما، دست نخورده باقی مانده است.

پیرامون ارزش تصاویر این کتاب، نوشته های جداگانه نیز منتشر کرده ام، اما چنان چه سواد مجازی بسیاری از هموطنان، زیاد نیست، نتوانسته اند به آن به گونه ای که راحت، دلخواه و آسان باشد، دسترسی یابند.

با این نگرش، بار دیگر خودم را به زحمت «قلم رایگان» انداختم تا حداقل به رسالتم به عنوان یک نخبه، فرهنگی و نویسنده خدشه نرسد. با تقدیم این کتاب، از هموطنان می خواهم جهت بیرون رفت از خلای فرهنگی، از ابزار ثبت و ضبط، هدفمندانه استفاده کنند. به باورم مجموعه های بسیار و دست نخورده ای وجود دارند که بهتر است هرچه زودتر از خلوت کلکسیون های شخصی، قفسه های کتابخانه ها و کنج های دنج بیرون شوند. ما در قرن بیست و یک، نیازمندتر از قبل هستیم. در زمینه ی گسترده ی این عصر، تبیین کامل تاریخ، یک نیاز اساسی، به خصوص سیاسی ماست.

۱- کتاب «بالاحصار کابل» را در زمینه ی مجازی معرفی کرده ام. با این وجود، چون حاوی تصاویر مرتبط و کم نظیری بود، به اثر پیوسته گی موضوع، آن ها را در این کتاب نیز افزوده ام. م.ع

شکل ۷: حصه از دروازهای بالاخصار در سال ۱۸۸۰ که از تپه سمت غربی آن دیده میشود. دروازه در حصه چپ پایانی که بالاخصار پایانی بود، وجود دارد، که در سال ۱۸۳۹ یا خشت بسته شده بود، اما در سال ۱۸۸۰ انگلیسیها آنرا دوباره باز کردند تا اینکه به تپه بالا برج دست یابند، این عکس از همان جای گرفته شده بود. | قطعه نقب زقان و کلیک داران بنگال، انستیتوت الجغرافیای شاھی |

شکل ۱۴: دروازه شاه شهيد که بنام دروازه لاهوري نيز ياد ميشود، بالاحصار در سال ۱۸۷۹. قطعه نقيب زنان و کليک داران بنگال، استيتوت انجمنان شاهي]

شکل ۱۵. دروازه تقاره خانه که بنام گروزه شهر نیز یاد میشود از برج بالای طرف راست معلوم میشود که استحکامات آنها دوباره تقویت شده و امکان دارد که این کار را انگلیسها در سال ۱۸۸۰ انجام داده باشند. | قطعه قبق زنان و کلنگ داران بنگال، استیشنوت انجمن ان شاهي |

شکل ۲۰: حویلی سلطنت قیصر شاهی در بلاحصار پابلی. این تصویر در سال ۱۸۷۹ یا ۱۸۸۰ گرفته شده، وقتی که قصر توسط قوای گورکا-انگلیس تصرف شده بود. برده های بالای پنجره ها یا پشاطر سایه کردن و یا جلوگیری از توده هوای سرد زمستان نصب شده باشند. این تصویر دارای یک طبقه تختانی (زیر زمینی) است (که مطبخ، ذخیره خانه مواد و پیاپه خانه و غیره دارد) و بالای آن منزل اول و اساسی قصر بود که دارای برده ها و اطالیق های نشیمن میباشد که منزل بالایی را دربر میگیرد. اقلیمه نقب زان و کلنگ داران بنگال، استنبوت اجیران شاهی.

شکل ۲۶: حصه ای از بالا-حصار که باغ قصر سابقه را در سال ۱۸۷۹ نشان میدهد. [قطعه نقب زنان و کلنگ داران بنغال، استیسیوت انجیران شاهی]

شکل ۳۰: حصه از بالا حصار پابانی و شهر کابل در سال ۱۸۷۹. عکاسی از بالا حصار پابانی صورت گرفته است. | قطعه نقب زان و کلنگ داران بنغال، انستیتوت انجیران

شکل ۳۱: گوشه از جنوب شرق بالا حصار پایانی در سال ۱۸۷۹ که دروازه عمومی در سمت راست آن دیده میشود. در آن موقع دیوارهای آن بسیار خراب شده بود و حصه از آنها به غرض قایل استفاده نبود زیرا بالای آنها دیوارهای خانه ها اباد شده بود. [قطعه نقب زنان و کلنگ داران بنگال، استیویوت، انجمن شاهي]

شکل ۳۲: گوشه شمال شرقی بالاحصار پایانی در سال ۱۸۷۹ که قصرامیر شیرعلیخان را نشان میدهد. اقطمه نقب زنان و کلنگ داران بنگال، استیبتوت انجیران شاهی

شکل ۳۶: تصویری از قلعه‌گاه کوگ ناری، بندها حمله بالایی آن شام اشیای منقول از اینجا برده و چوارل شد. تحریبات بیشتر در اینجا بعد از انفجار یک انبار مهمات در بالاحصار بالایی اتفاق افتاد. قلعه‌ها نخب زان و کلنگ داران بنگال، استیجیوت انجیران شاهی

An Afghan Water Mill in Afghanistan, 1879.

The mill, rectangular shaped with a thatched roof, was probably operated on a part-time basis by the family pictured in the photograph. The water mill is a traditional design with a small horizontal mill-house built of stone, or perhaps mud bricks. The men look directly at the camera, but a woman wearing a chador partially screens her face for modesty.

Peshawar Fort, 1878.

Also known as Bala Hissar (High Fort, in Persian), the fort served as the winter capital of the Durrani Empire . It was reconstructed in 1835 under the Sikh Empire , after its conquest by Sikh forces, but was captured by the British in 1849. The fort dominates the background of the photograph. The dirt road in the foreground is the Grand Trunk Road running from India to Afghanistan. On it travelers and merchants are seen observing the photographer.

Pontoon bridges such as this one, formed from boats lashed together by various materials, were easily assembled and disassembled. This pontoon bridge was built near the town of Attock in Punjab Province, in present-day Pakistan, and likely was used by the British Army to ferry supplies and troops across the Indus. Laborers, fishermen, travelers, soldiers, and pack animals are seen in the foreground. Attock itself is visible on the plateau in the background at the far right.

Shamsher Bridge and Masjid, Kabul

Description

This photograph of Shah-doo-Shamsher Bridge and the Shah-doo-Shamsher Masjid (mosque) in Kabul is from an album of rare historical photographs depicting people and places associated with the Second Anglo-Afghan War. Shah-doo-Shamsher means "king of two swords" in Dari. Shamsher Bridge crosses the Kabul River, which is the main waterway through the city. Except during the summer, the flow of the river is minimal. An Afghan soldier overlooks the river with the bridge in the background, while several people take shelter from the sun in the shadows of a nearby building. The Shamsher Masjid is not clearly visible in this photograph.

Buddhist Tope at Sphola, 1879. Photo by John Burke.

This Buddhist tope (stupa) above the Afghan village of Sphola, is situated about 25 kilometers from Jamrud. This ruined stupa features a dome resting upon a three-tiered base. Sphola sits in a ravine located midway between Ali Masjid and Landi Kotal in the Khyber Pass. The stupa may have been constructed towards the end of the Kushan Empire or soon after (third to fifth centuries). It is the most complete Buddhist monument in the Khyber Pass.

River Gorge above Lalpura looking towards Bassaule, 1878 (c).

Photograph by John Burke, 2nd Afghan War (1878-1880), 1878.

Lalpura village was located to the south of Jalalabad and was controlled by the Khan of Lalpur, one of the most powerful Mohmand chiefs in the Peshawar valley. Initially, the Khan was on fairly good terms with the British but after Major-General Frederick Roberts' arrest of Yakub Khan's wife - who was also the Khan's daughter - for spying, the outraged Mohmands, several of whom are visible in the right foreground of this photograph, began systematically to harass the British line of supply near Jalalabad.

"A Loyal Afghan", 1879. This photograph of a white-clad Afghan tribesman wearing a carefully wrapped turban and a medal pinned to his tunic, with his sword by his side. The religious and ethnic identity of this individual is unknown. The caption states that he was "a loyal Afghan," so he may have fought with the British during the war and earned the medal for his service.

"Dumps," An Afghan Girl

Description

This photograph of a young Afghan girl is from an album of rare historical photographs depicting people and places associated with the Second Anglo-Afghan War. The girl's head is covered with a patterned scarf tied behind her head and full-body chador (a large cloth worn as a combination head covering and shawl), and her long braided hair hangs down below her waist. The caption supplied by the photographer sheds little light on the girl's identity or circumstances but may derive from her melancholy expression and the British saying "to be down in the dumps," meaning to be depressed.

Description

This photograph of a group of Afghan men is from an album of rare historical photographs depicting people and places associated with the Second Anglo-Afghan War. Most of the men are armed with jezails (elongated heavy muskets) and long daggers and wear distinctive turbans. Pashtuns generally leave a length of turban cloth hanging down, so these men are probably from a Photograph of part of the Jagdaiak defile in Afghanistan, taken by John Burke in 1879-80. The Jagdaiak Pass, situated between Kabul and Jalalabad, cuts through the forbidding Hindu Kush mountain range and was the scene of bitter conflict during the First (1839-42) and Second (1878-80) Afghan Wars. It resonates in British military history particularly because many British soldiers were killed here during the First Afghan War.

Photograph of the mausoleum of Timur Shah (ruled 1772-1793) taken by John Burke in 1878-80 in Kabul, Afghanistan. In the mid-18th century, Ahmad Shah Durrani unified Afghanistan. His son Timur Shah inherited the kingdom in 1772 and moved the capital from Kandahar to Kabul in 1776. His undecorated and unfinished mausoleum (uncompleted because of the instability after his death) is an octagonal red brick structure, surmounted by a plain brick drum and shallow dome.

An engraving entitled 'Mr Burke Posing the Ameer', from the drawing by Frederic Villiers, published in 'The Graphic' in July 1879.

The sketch shows John Burke taking a photograph of the Afghan Amir, Yaqub Khan (d. 1914) at the signing of the treaty of Gandamak.

The original text in 'The Graphic' reads: 'Mr. J. Burke the photographic artist attached to our Indian Army to illustrate the advance of the troops and the grand scenery of Afghanistan, was permitted by the Ameer of Cabul to take a series of pictures of himself and his suite at the camp at Gandamak.'

Fixing The Negative. Mr. Burke Posing The Ameer, The Ameer Yakoub Khan At Gandamak, Afghan War, Engraving 1882.

Photograph of a makeshift transport for a wounded British (Indian) soldier. Two soldiers wearing sun-shielding pith helmets stand at the front of the photograph. They flank two Afghan camel drivers who likely are escorting the wounded soldier. The soldier's head is swathed in bandages and he lies on a platform atop another dromedary camel. Because of their greater endurance in the harsh Afghan climate, camels were generally preferable to horses for transporting the wounded. British and Indian forces also used camels extensively to transport supplies and equipment.

Photograph of a pile of military "trophies" after the Battle of Peiwar Kotai in November 1878. A young boy is perched atop the pile; he leans against a huge bass drum and sits on a fur-lined sheepskin coat, called a poostin in Dari. He is surrounded by an assortment of military items that were abandoned during the battle or removed from the bodies of slain soldiers. They include swords and scimitars of both British and Afghan design, scabbards, rifles, and a helmet in the center.

Group of Afghans. Most of the men are armed with rifles or jezails (heavy Afghan muskets) and wear distinctive turbans. Pashtuns generally leave a length of turban cloth hanging down, so these men are probably from a smaller ethnic group. One lone exception has no head covering at all, and there is a Sikh soldier sitting on a chair in the center of the photograph. He wears a British Army uniform, soldiers' boots, and a Sikh dastar (a different style of turban), which distinguishes him from the rest of the group. Some Pashtun tribes fought for the British during the war, while Sikhs were used as highly effective mountain scouts and regular infantry against Afghan forces

Mustanfi (also seen as mostufi and mustaofi, the latter being the Arabic origin of the title) was a title approximating to state treasurer, the most powerful position in the government of Afghanistan after that of Amir Yakub Khan. Mustanfis were not elected, but subject to the ruler's approval. They had full authority over all financial affairs, including hiring and dismissal of government personnel. Habibullah Khan is seated on a tasseled chair and wearing a small longi (turban) and chapan (tunic) covered by a shawl.

Small groups live near the Khyber Pass, and are relatively integrated into Pashtun culture. Parsiwan, or "Persian speaker" refers specifically to Afghans speaking Dari, or Afghan Persian, as opposed to Farsi, or Iranian Persian, although the two languages are mutually comprehensible. Most Parsiwans live in western Afghanistan in and around Herat. The men here are dressed in traditional style, with fine embroidery on their overcoats and pointed shoes. This photograph was taken in the same location and from the same angle as another portrait in the album, but with different men as subjects.

The crowd of men and young boys seems to have gathered to watch the photographer at work. A street vendor is selling food. His shop is adorned with beautiful traditional embroidered chadors, large scarfs worn by women as a combination of veil, shawl, and head covering. The photograph was taken during the British occupation of Kandahar, which lasted from September 1880 to April 1881.

The heavy wooden doors of the gate, one of the entrances to the Kandahar citadel, can be seen in the back center of the photograph. Soldiers in pith helmets stand guard, regarding a scene that includes camels and herdsmen who have just emerged from the gate, civilians visible in the foreground, and a boy minding his sheep. The photograph most likely was taken during the British occupation of Kandahar, which lasted from September 1880 to April 1881.

The village and pass of Baba Wali were named for a Kandahari holy man whose tomb was nearby. The place was the site of a major battle outside Kandahar in September, 1880, between Afghan forces led by Ghazi Mohammad Ayub Khan (1857–1914) and British and Indian forces under Sir Frederick Roberts (1832–1914). The British defeated Ayub Khan, raising...

The Murcha Pass linked the Kandahar Plain with the Urgundab valley. During the Battle of Kandahar on 1 September 1880 it was the scene of fierce fighting between Ayub Khan's tribesmen and General Sir Hugh Gough's Cavalry Brigade.

Having marched 300 miles from Kabul to relieve Kandahar, General Roberts lost no time in bringing the Afghan army of Yakub Khan's younger brother, Ayub Khan, to battle outside the city. This photograph, taken from the corner of the Picket Hill, shows the start-line of Roberts' trademark...

Deh Khoja was a village to the east of Kandahar. Ayub Khan's men captured the settlement at the start of the Siege of Kandahar. They stationed several guns there and opened fire on the city. The British attempted to silence the batteries during a sortie on 16 August 1880, but they were unsuccessful. Brigadier-General Henry Brooke, who commanded the operation, was among those killed that day.

The first meeting of Amir Yakoob Khan with Major Cavagnari C.S.I. & Mr Jenkins 7 miles from Safed Sang, May 1879.

Cavagnari was knighted for his role in securing a treaty which granted territories and control of foreign policy to the British in return for peace. The village of Gandamak was selected because it had been the location of the infamous massacre in 1842 of the remnants of General Elphinstone's army, retreating from Kabul at the end of the 1st Afghan War. In September 1879, several Afghan regiments mutinied, resulting in the deaths of Cavagnari, his staff and escorts; as a result, hostilities between Afghanistan and Britain were resumed.

Kandahar from Hazratiji Tomb, 1878-1880. Photo by Sir Benjamin Simpson

Located north of the center of the city and surrounded by the tombs of 19th-century Afghan rulers, the tomb is a shrine to Hazratiji, a famous Kandahari saint. That his tomb is seven meters long attests to his reputation for holiness. The other tombs have tall marble stones at each end and are decorated with black and white pebbles. The photograph shows the walls and sentry towers of the city, sprawling across the background and fading into the distance to the right. Small shrines and graves occupy the foreground. The British occupied Kandahar from September 1880 until their withdrawal in April 1881, which marked the end of the war

۱- عکاسی های لیلیا آنا هاملتون از افغانستان

۱- لیلیا آنا هاملتون، نویسنده و داکتر نظامی اردوی بریتاناست. او در حاکمیت امیر عبدالرحمن خان، به دعوت وی به کابل می آید و سه سال را در افغانستان، سپری می کند. خانم هاملتون، افزون بر معالجه ی امیر، به عامه ی افغان ها نیز خدمت کرده است. در این بخش، مجموعه ای از تصاویری را افزوده ام که خانم هاملتون از شهر و دربار کابل، گرفته است. جالب این جاست که مردم ما خلاف تبلیغات مغرضانه و سوء که گویا با مظاهر تمدن، شدیداً مخالف بوده اند، در چند مجموعه تصاویری که در قرن نوزده و اوایل قرن بیست از سوی داخلی ها و خارجی ها از آنان گرفته شده، بی تفاوت، علاقه مند، با جبین گشاده و گاه خوشحال و متعجب در برابر کمره های عکاسی ایستاده اند و به تاریخ مستند، کمک کرده اند. خانم هاملتون با آزادی عمل یک زن، از خلوت های دربار و زنان درباری نیز تصویر گرفته است. این دست باز، سبب شده تصاویر خیلی شفاف و واضحی از اندرون امارت نیز داشته باشیم. ارزش تصاویر او در این است که به زنده گی اجتماعی و خانواده گی مردم هم سرزده و از آن ها عکس گرفته است. م.ع
